Current topics for research and review

The team at the London Hand and Wrist Unit have recently completed a series of education sessions looking at evidence based practice for sensation testing, hypersensitivity, and the management of scar tissue. We have updated our information and hand-outs in line with our findings to ensure patients are receiving the best possible care.

Over the next two months our focus will be looking into fracture healing, x-rays, and therapeutic management for broken bones in the hand and wrist.
